On many farms there are patches health upon their face is far more of land that are unproductive that it precious and beautiful than the jew-does not pay to plant them with any cles and diamonds with which they kind of sultivand area. Then may adon themselves of land that are unproductive that it does not pay to plant them with any kind of cultivated crop. They may produce some grass, but scarcely chapted to keep the fences around it in repair. Sometimes these spots are unproductive on account of being covered with stones, but in a larger number of cases the surface soit has been washed away, leaving little or nothing but hard pan, or clay or gravel. Land that is situated on side hills is liable to be badly washed assoon as the turf over it is broken. If it has been planted with tobacco or corn for a number of years it is the more likely to have the surface soit washed away.

Land of this description can only be made productive by "heroic treatment." It requires the formation of a new soil. To this end it must be broken up to as great a depth as can be reached by a subsoil plow. In England, France and some of the Eastern States, dynamite has been resorted to as a means of breaking up the clay or pan that is too hard to te easily pulverized with a plow. Blast-ting enables the frost to carry on its easily pulverized with a plow. Blast-tng enables the frost to carry on its exposure to cold. The remedy is to tng enables the frost to carry on its work of disintegration. It also enables water and air to circulate among the broken masses of earth. Brush fires render good service in making this sort of land fertile. The addition of lime is recommended, as it acts to produce decomposition. Hard clay that has been broken is mechanically benefitted by the addition of sand, peat, chip-manure, or even sawdust and shavings. Of course the ordinary fertilizers will be required to insure a crop.

Exposure to cold. The remedy is to rub turpentine or mustard paste upon the loins, and to give a teaspoonful of saltpeire in the food once a day. Dry pens, and protection from rains in the hot season are the best preventives.

The Truth.

In the whole United States there is not a flavoring extract that is so valuable, so positive, so effectual in producing the most delicious, desirable, insure a crop.

The first crops should be turned under. Rye, millet and bucks heat are all suitable for this purpose. It is practical to raise and turn under two crops a year. The first crop to raise with a view to gain should be red clover, the roots of which penetrate to a long distance. Land too rocky to be plowed should ordinarily be set out with fruit or timber trees. The labor of preparing a spot of land of sufficient give for a tree is not great and only a small number of trees are required for an acre. Trees may also be planted to good advantage on in the places where they are to stand.

A little manure goes a long way when applied to trees planted twenty or thirty feet apart. Many of the best orchards in New England were planted on land too rocky too be plowed and too unproductive to produce a crop of grain.—Chicago

How Coffee is Raised.

Coffee culture is very interesting, and the growing crop is very beautiful. The trees at materity are from five to eight feet high; they are well shaped and bushy, with dark green-foliage, and planted eight or nine feet apart. The flowers are in clusters at the root of the leaves, and are small, but pure white and very fra-grant. The fruit has a rich color and grant. The fruit has a rich color and resembles a small cherry or a large cranberry; it grows in clusters close to the branches, and when it becomes a deep red, is ripe and ready to be gathered. The trees are raised from seed and do not begin to yield until the third year. In Central America they bear well for ten or fifteen years these has a seed and do got begin to yield until the third year. In Central America they bear well for ten or fifteen years. although in exceptional cases trees twenty years old will yield an abundance of fruit. The tree is particularly beautiful when in full bloom, or when laden with ripe fruit.

are still covered with a sort of glutinous substance which adheres to the bean; they are now appread out on large 'patios," made expressly for the purpose, and lett there, being oc-casionally tossed about and turned over with wooden shovels until they over with wooden shovels until they are perfectly dry. They are then gathered up, put into the "retrilla," a circular trough in which a heavy wooden wheel, shod with steel, is made to revolve, so as to thoroughly break the husk without crueling the heav. The chaff is separated from bean. The chaff is separated from the grain by means of a fauning mill, and the coffee is now thoroughly dry and clean. After this it is the custom and cleag. After this it is the custom of some planters to have it spread out on tables and carefully picked over by the Indian women and children, all the bad beans being thrown out. It only remains then to have it put into bags, weighed and marked, before it is ready for shipment and sale. On some of the large ment and sale. On some of the lar ger plantations this process is greatly simplified, with considerable saving in time and labor, by the use of improved machinery for drying and cleaning the coffee.
